ENTER FOR THEIR WORK

Bright Faces Greet the Teachers in the Public Schools.

ACTIVE WORK ON MONDAY

Other Educational Institutions to Begin Their Labors.

The work of education both public and private is beginning in Richmond in dead sarnest, and there are scenes of activity around nearly all the school and college ildings, most preparations being made for business in those which have not yet opened for their annual sessions.

The enrollment of former pupils wa at all the public schools yester-At 9 o'clock the scenes were unusually inspiring at the High School and all the grammar schools, the pupils hav-made.

Superintendent Fox and Secretary Walford were graiffed at the heavy enrollment on the first day and they believe a most successful session is beginning.

The new pupils will come in to-day and be registered and furnished with their book lists. This will include those who enter for the first time at the High School and Colored Normal.

All scholars in all schools will be expected to have their books and other needed equipments when they come in Monday morning, when the real work of the session will begin.

Barring the fact that some of the buildings notably that of the High School, are not as commonount as might be wished, the public school machinery is in nushape and everything possible has been done by the officers and teachers during vacation to make the session prosperous and successful in every respect.

Other Schools to Open.

Other Schools to Open.
Students will matriculate to-day and tomorrow for the third session of the Richmond Academy, in which institution regular work will begin on Monday. The ular work will begin on Monday. The opening exercises, which will begin at moon on that day, will consist of brief addresses, the presentation of medals and announcements as to the year's work. The sixty-seventh session of the Medical College of Virginia begins on September 2th. It is expected that there will be a heavy attendance this year. The dental department of this college has been placed on the same footing with the dental colleges of New York State.

ial colleges of New York State.

The University College of Meddelne opens its doors on September 21st. It is thought that the attendance this year will be greater than that during last session.

The doors of Richmond College will be thrown open on the 22d for the ensuring session. The college has been well equipped in all its departments.

On September, 21st, the fall session of the Woman's College commences. All rooms, with the exception of two or three, have been engaged, and the city attendance will probably be large.

ADVANCE BEGUN

Kamchatka, five Japanese fishing schooners have been burned. Their crews were annihilated. The Japanese announced the annexation of the territory and proclaimed it a Japanese protectorate. They were subsequently captured by 120 Russian reserves. Kamchatka remains true to her old traditions. The inhabitants have taken up arms and are ready to shed their blood for their faith, their Czar and their fatherland. "General Stoessel sees in these proclamations an indication of the e-envy consciousness of failure. On September 3d, the enemy received reinforcements on the west front of the fortress. During the bombardment of September 2d, the Japanese squadron remained the whole time in view of the fortress."

expeditions arrangements were made by Russia with Great Britain and the United States. It is not supposed that the af-fairs will lead to a diplomatic incident. An official report has also been re-ceived of the landing of a Japanese force of 150 naval reserve men on the west coast of Kamchatka, who declared the sovereignity of Japan over the peninsula, but were afterwards defeated by a Rus-Driush Ship Blown Up.

NAGASAKI, Sept., 15-3 P. M.—A British sailing vessel supposed to be the British bark Pucla, struck a mine recently off Port Arthur. One person of those on board of her was rescued. It is considered probable that to vessel was running the blockade.

The reference of Viceroy Alexieff to the view taken by General Stoessel of "these proclamations" is somewhat vague, but it would seem that he does not refer to the proclamations of a Japanese protectorate over the Kamchatka Peninsula, and apparently over the Kommander Japanese to the Russian troops at Port Arthur demanding their surrender,

Dr. James Morris Page, Chairman of the Faculty, Transfers the Administrative Duties.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, Sept. 15.
public welcome to Dr. Edwin A. Alderman as president of the University of Virginia was given in the public hall this evening in the presence of the board of visitors and a large assemblage made up of professors, students and visitors.

Dr. James Morris Page, the last chairman of the faculty, presided, and the investion was made by Dr. Coarse I.

tor Jones, and Dr. Page was the spokes, man for the University, professors and officers.

Dr. Page gave cordal expression to their pleasure in welcoming Dr. Alderman, and cited the conditions leading up to the determination to select a president.

MISTAKEN OPINION.

Dr. Page then said:

"In many quarters the mistaken opinion has prevaled that this step was taken by the visitors contrary to the desire of the faculty. But it is a historical fact, vouched for by the records on the faculty minute book, that in October, 1902, when the recent discussion with regard to the orealton of the office of president had just begun, the faculty adopted by an overwhelming majority a resolution recommending to the visitors the creation of that office. I mention this fact in order to correct the erroneous opinion that the faculty opposed the appointment of a president. The faculty had long groaned under the difficulties and exations which necessarily followed from referring to the whole body little business details which elsewhere were expeditiously and satisfactorily disposed of by one man.

"That also is a mistaken opinion which had declared itself in the University of lafe years. On the contrary, the opinion of the faculty—and, I suppose, to some extent, that of the visitors—that this University needs a president, was based in large measure upon the fact that the administrative affairs of the institution have so grown both in. scope and complexity within the last decade and a half that a form, of government practicable when the institution, was younger had proved too cumbersome to meet the altered conditions.

"As I have said, we do not consider that this University has been a victim of arrested development," for as a matter of fact, the number of students matriculated has more than doubled within that sitely and succeed and a half the faculty within the last decade and a half the faculty within the last decade within the last fifteen years, a record which com-

I feel about me the strength of the faculties of this University, whose message delivered, by their able representative, I profoundly appreciate—a group of able, large-minded, unselfish men who have lived the life of devotion to a cause. The most impressive thing to me about this University, or any university, is not its physical setting or its body of traditions, or its so-called spirit, but the unbroken stream of human devotion and love and service which genbut the unbroken stream of numan de-votion and love and sorvice which gen-erations of men have poured into it—from the great founder, whose fading life it glorified and strengthened, to our col-leagues and friends of to-day, whose hair has whitened in its service, but whose hearts have the deathless youth that hearts have the deathess youth that comes to those who serve the young. Our wirle democracy, with its peril of vulgar strength, has been refined and ennobled by the example of such menand by the spectacle of such institutions living on forever and never lacking such service. I come to you as the executive head

I come to you as the executive head of this University.

The office in America, and peculiarly here, is a new creation of modern needs and almost insuperably difficult to fill. There is a five-fold relation which a president must bear to boards and faculties, to students and society and scholarship, that makes demand upon his sympathy and his wisdom so widely variant as to render it impossible for him to act without error and without frequent criticism and charge of duplicity. It is commonly alleged against college presidents, er than in any power of the ton or of speech. For him there must be the open mind, the sympathetic spirit, the patient temper, the sleepless eye; and his power should be commensurate with his responsibility.

I am conscious of the support and counsel of the Board of Visitors—eminent men of civic virtue and public spirit, who administer a noble trust without hope of gain to themselves save such large gain as comes to men who serve society in upbuilding ways.

I see before me the bright and widening circle of alumni, who have been made strong by alma mater. The alumni of this institution are the fruits of the tree. If it has any strength, they are that strength. If it hopes for any power, these hopes centre in that circle. I

THE TRUE SPIRIT.

"A thousand schemes for social amelio-ration are afoot in the South, ranging from suffrage questions to the establish-ment of libraries. Let us make no patch-work job of it. A new kind of social spirit and social knowledge are needed to guide self-conscious and tolerant of critisism. understood and taught the laws of growth.

And lastly I feel about as the strength of sustenance of the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the co-operation and respect of Institutions, which, like us, are working to make men. I have come to make my home in Virginia and to spend my life here. One may do that with calm pride and confidence, for the past of Virginia stands clear and steadfast, and the present is an earnest and hopeful time. The day of large things has come into our national and State life. It was a stunting inheritance from days of trial and poverty that made us try in former days to achieve large ends with small means. This University is the supreme intellectual achievement of this Commonwealth. It has contributed to its progress, unity, patriotism, righteousness and culture. It should be and it will be the highest satisfaction of the State to understand it, to sympathize with and to strengthen it, not as if it doled out charity, but as one increases his noblest investment. This is not the State that once lay beaten with the stripes of war and misrule. Wealth and power are here, and our great need as a people is to invest in education, not to scrimp and save.

republic's sake, needs a great majestic, littleness—out of which should come the industrial power and patriotic scholarly-mindedness which our life demands. Democracy unsteadled by such forces is a generous fantasy. The great region south of the Potomac has not its share of such power, and its lack of it is impairing the homogeneity of the nation. The great movement of individual benedicence has all but passed us by. This is the spot for such a university, and the building of such a great institution here would mean more to our social structure than any event since the passing of silvery.
